“Ozirisz földjén” (On the field of Osiris) is a museum-pedagogical program I launched two years ago with the aim to find a new way to contact Hungarian children of age 10-14 with the Egyptian Collection of the Museum of Fine Arts, Budapest, and to give them a better understanding of ancient Egypt and the pieces in the collection, but also to increase their creativity, skills and sense for art. It is an on-line competition (<http://www.szepmuveszeti.hu>) with units to accomplish for getting into the final, when the best groups compete personally in the Museum.
