Carving Faces, Carving Lives: People of the Boreal Forest by Terry Garvin (author)

The Heritage Community Foundation is pleased to announce its first print publication: Carving Faces, Carving Lives: People of the Boreal Forest. This remarkable book by author and photographer Terry Garvin explores the Aboriginal Peoples who continued to preserve a traditional hunting, trapping, and gathering lifestyle in the boreal forest despite great social, technological, and industrial changes that came to the northern woodlands. Thoughtful text and beautiful photographs capture the intimate relationship between the First Nations, Métis, and Inuvialuit peoples of the north and their boreal forest home. 240pages and 345 full colour photographs. Four colour bleed. Smythe sewn binding.
