

Celebrating the 50th Anniversary of the Civil Rights Act of 1964

May 2014

“Of all the forms of inequality, injustice in health care is the most shocking and inhumane.”
--Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., in a speech to the Medical Committee for Human Rights, 1966

The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services joins in celebrating the 50th Anniversary of the Civil Rights Act of 1964. On June 20, 2014, HHS, in partnership with the U.S. Department of Justice, will jointly host “From Segregation to Integration: Celebrating Landmark Anniversaries,” a day commemorating the 50th Anniversary of Title VI of the Civil Rights Act and the 15th Anniversary of the Olmstead decision. We hope you will visit <http://www.hhs.gov/live> to view a webcast of the event.

Spotlight on Language Access and Equality: Lau v. Nichols (1974)

In honor of Asian and Pacific Islander Heritage Month, HHS spotlights the Supreme Court's decision in Lau v. Nichols,<sup>1</sup> a class-action lawsuit brought on behalf of non-English-speaking Chinese students in the San Francisco school system. Although the students only spoke Chinese, the school's policy was to provide instruction only in English and require proficiency in English prior to graduation from grade 12. The Court found that this policy made “a mockery of public education” by denying students a “meaningful opportunity to participate in the educational program.” The Court stated that “there is no equality of treatment merely by providing students with the same facilities, textbooks, teachers, and curriculum, for students who do not understand English are effectively foreclosed from any meaningful education.” Thus, the Court confirmed that discrimination prohibited by Title VI includes methods of program administration that have a disproportionate and adverse-impact on persons of a particular national origin. Importantly, while applied in an educational setting under Title VI, Lau's reach extends to any federally assisted program or activity. As a result, Lau has provided a fundamental foundation for helping to ensure federally assisted health and human services programs provide language assistance services to limited English proficient individuals at no cost.
