MAIN CHARACTERISTICS OF THE ARMED FORCES.

The armed forces of New Zealand are based on the militia system. Besides a permanent force with a very small establishment, there is a territorial force whose members serve with the colours only a few days annually. In addition to the permanent and territorial forces, the armed forces of New Zealand also include cadets.

The Permanent Forces.—The Permanent Forces are maintained in order to provide commanders and staffs at the various headquarters and military establishments, adjutants, instructional staff and instructional cadres for the Territorial Force and the Air Force, nucleus garrisons for the fixed defences and aerodromes, and maintenance and administrative staffs at ordnance depots. They are raised by voluntary enlistment and correspond to the Regular Army in the United Kingdom.

The Territorial Force.—The Territorial Force is maintained for the defence of New Zealand and constitutes the field army for that purpose. It is raised on a basis of voluntary service and corresponds broadly to the Territorial Army in the United Kingdom.

During a national emergency, the territorial force is liable to service in any part of New Zealand, and cannot be compelled to serve outside the Dominion.

Cadets are trained in the territorial force.

Both the permanent and the territorial forces have a reserve; there is also a reserve of officers to which all officers of the permanent and territorial forces are posted, as well as those of the obligatory forces raised on mobilisation.
I. Army.

ORGANS OF MILITARY COMMAND AND ADMINISTRATION.

The government of the forces is vested in the Crown. The Minister of Defence, being charged essentially with the administration of the New Zealand military forces, decides questions of policy, and issues his instructions accordingly; but the actual command and the issuing of orders for carrying out these instructions are the function of the General Officer Commanding the Military Forces, who is responsible to the Minister of Defence. An officer is appointed in each of the three military commands of the dominion to command and administer such units as are located in his command.

I. Defence Department.

The Department of Defence is organised as follows:

Minister of Defence.
General Officer Commanding the New Zealand Military Forces.
Branch of the General Staff.

The Chief of the General Staff, who is assisted by three general staff officers for training and staff duties, operations and intelligence, and a director of signals.

The Chief of the General Staff is responsible to the General Officer Commanding for advice as to conduct of military operations; war organisation, fighting efficiency, and training of the military forces; collection of intelligence, etc.

Branch of the Adjutant-General.

The Adjutant-General is assisted by Directors of Medical, Hygiene and Dental Services.

Branch of the Quarter-Master-General.

The Quarter-Master-General is assisted by Director of Works, Director of Railways, Director of Ordnance Services, Director of Veterinary Services and Remounts.

Air Services.
Artillery Services.
Judge Advocate-General and Deputy Judge Advocate-General.
General Headquarters Training Depot.
Ordnance Depot.

2. Air Board.

An Air Board, consisting of three naval and military officers and five senior administrative officers of the Civil Service, has been set up to act purely as an advisory body to the Government on all matters concerning aviation in the dominion.
3. COMMITTEES.

1. Mobilisation Committee:
   Chief of the General Staff (Chairman);
   Adjutant- and Quartermaster-General;
   Director of Artillery;
   General Staff Officer (Secretary).

2. Establishments Committee:
   Chief of the General Staff (Chairman);
   Director of Military Training and Intelligence;
   Adjutant- and Quartermaster-General;
   Director of Artillery.

3. Small-Arms Ammunition Committee:
   Director of Artillery (Chairman);
   Director of Military Training and Intelligence;
   Adjutant- and Quartermaster-General;
   Director of Ordnance Services;
   Director of Financial Services.

TERRITORIAL MILITARY COMMANDS.

For purposes of defence, New Zealand is divided into three commands: Northern (headquarters—Auckland), central (headquarters—Wellington) and southern (headquarters—Christchurch). Each command contains the permanent force (see below) and the following units of the territorial force:

1 mounted rifles brigade (3 regiments), 1 brigade and 1 group of artillery (7 batteries in northern command, 6 in central and 6 in southern), 1 infantry brigade (4 battalions), 1 field company of engineers, 1 signal depot, 1 army service composite company and 1 field ambulance.

This organisation, on mobilisation, produces one complete division and three brigades of mounted rifles.

In a national emergency, each regmental district could provide extra battalions up to the extent of the man-power and equipment available. Regmental districts are subdivided into areas for registration purposes, each in charge of an officer and a small staff for training and administration.

COMPOSITION OF THE ARMY.¹

I. PERMANENT FORCE.

The units of the permanent forces are: Staff Corps, Permanent Staff, Artillery, New Zealand Permanent Air Force, Army Ordnance Corps, Medical Corps, Army Service Corps, and the General Duty Section of the permanent force.

2. Territorial Force.\footnote{Owing to the financial stringency it has been decided, as a temporary measure, to reduce the territorial force to a cadre basis, and to dispense with the training of senior cadets, except at secondary schools. The existing organisation will continue to be maintained, but under the cadre establishment.}

The territorial force consists of:

3 mounted rifle brigades (9 regiments, 27 squadrons of which 9 are machine-gun squadrons);
3 field artillery brigades (10 field batteries of which 3 are howitzers);
2 coast batteries, 4 medium batteries and 2 light batteries;
3 field companies of engineers;
3 depots of signal corps;
3 infantry brigades (12 battalions);
3 field companies of Army Service Corps.

Each battery of field artillery brigade comprises four guns of 18-pounders or four 4.5-in. howitzers.
A medium artillery battery contains four 60-pounder guns, horse-drawn, or four 6-in. howitzers, tractor-drawn.
A coast artillery battery contains six guns and three engines, three lights and three dynamo-rooms for the electric lights section.
A light battery contains four 3.7-in. guns.

Each infantry battalion includes one headquarter wing, one machine-gun company and three rifle companies.

The headquarter wing is composed of three groups, of which one anti-tank group (four guns); the machine-gun company has sixteen machine-guns.

On mobilisation, each command provides ammunition columns, sanitary sections and mobile veterinary sections in addition.

Aviation.

The New Zealand air forces are administered and controlled by the Defence Department.

The executive command of the air forces is exercised by the Director of Air Services, General Headquarters, who is responsible to the General Officer Commanding the Forces.

The air forces are divided into the Royal New Zealand Air Force (a permanent force), and the New Zealand Air Force (Territorial).

The Royal New Zealand Air Force consists of an air force depot and training establishment at Sockburn, Christchurch, and a combined seaplane and landplane base at Hobsonville, Auckland.

The Royal New Zealand Air Force is responsible for the training of the New Zealand Air Force, and the maintenance of aircraft and equipment. It also carries out army co-operation duties with the territorial units, and naval co-operation duties with the N.Z. Division of the Royal Navy.
The New Zealand Air Force (Territorial).—There are annual refresher courses of 10 days' duration for officers of the New Zealand Air Force, who are also required to carry out 12 hours' flying during the year.

The territorial air force is organised into a wing consisting of four squadrons (2 bomber and 2 army co-operation squadrons), each of three flights.

Air Material.

(I930-31.)

| Number of aeroplanes | 21
| Total horse-power    | 5,100

DEFENCE RIFLE CLUBS.

Rifle clubs exist for the purpose of educating non-members of the naval, military or air forces and the public generally in the necessity for training citizens to shoot. They are affiliated to, but do not form part of, the territorial force; all British subjects over the age of 18 are eligible to join. There are (May 31st, 1934) 150 clubs with 4,921 members.

POLICE FORCES.

All police are included in one State force under the control of the Commissioner for Police, who is responsible to a Minister of the Crown.

Policemen are armed with revolvers where necessary. Arms not in regulation equipment, but in the use of which instruction is given, comprise rifle, bayonet and automatic pistol (as alternative to revolver).

Training: infantry drill, including rifle and bayonet and rifle or automatic pistol exercises; for mounted men cavalry training, etc. Training is given by police officials. The recruiting system is based on voluntary enlistment. Budgetary effectives for 1934-35: 1,239.

RECRUITING SYSTEM AND PERIOD OF SERVICE.

Military service is voluntary. Compulsory service in the territorial army was suspended in 1930, and the territorial force was organised on the basis of voluntary enlistment. The new scheme came into force on June 1st, 1931. It provides for the continuance of the territorial force with a strength of some 10,000, as compared with some 16,000 under the system of compulsory service.

In time of war, it is lawful for the Governor (the occasion being first communicated to Parliament if Parliament is then sitting, or notified by Proclamation if Parliament is not then sitting) by Proclamation to call upon persons liable to serve in the militia to enrol in the militia, and thereupon such persons shall, within the time and in the manner prescribed, enrol in the militia for the prescribed period.

1 Includes 11 aeroplanes capable of use in war in commission in operational units and 10 aeroplanes capable of use in war in training establishments.
Permanent Force.

Enlistment in the permanent force is for a term of five years; men can re-enlist up to 55 years of age or until they have had thirty-five years of active service.

All ranks of the Permanent Forces are called upon to assist in the training of the Territorial Force and provide in certain cases a permanent nucleus thereto.

Territorial Force.

Enlistment in the territorial force is for a period of three years and may be renewed each year up to the age of 32 years.

The minimum age of enlistment is 18 years.

The annual obligatory training for all units of the Territorial Force includes:

(i) 30 hours’ training before the annual camp;
(ii) 6 days’ continuous training in camp (during which the minimum of 6 hours’ work is to be performed each day);
(iii) The range courses prescribed. These are carried out during half-day parades, included in (i) above.

There are obligatory courses in camp lasting one week for majors, captains and lieutenants who are preparing for their promotion examinations.

Territorial Force Reserve.

The Territorial Force Reserve is composed of those who have served efficiently for 3 years in the Territorial Force and are under the age of 41 years. Officers of the Territorial Force Reserve attend a camp of instruction with their unit once every 3 years; other ranks do no training at all.

MILITARY TRAINING OF CADETS.

Since the suspension of compulsory military training, only cadets attending secondary schools are trained. The pupils of these schools are on an average 15 years of age. The annual training approximates 30 drills of 1½ hours’ duration, including a musketry course, and a “barracks” lasting 5 days.

The strength of the secondary-school cadets on May 31st, 1934, was 358 officers and 16,631 other ranks.

Cadets are sent to the Royal Military Academy, Woolwich, the Royal Military College, Sandhurst, or the Royal Military College of Australia. These cadets, after completing their courses and receiving their commissions, are attached to units of the British Regular Army for varying periods in accordance with the arm or the service to which they will be posted on their return to New Zealand.
Provision exists for regimental cadet detachments consisting of prospective recruits for the Territorial Force, who are under the age of 18 years. These detachments carry out the same drills as the Territorial Force.

Cadets are organised into battalions (thirty-two battalions). A battalion consists of a headquarters and from four to six companies; a company consists of from four to six platoons.

Cadet units in the main centres have artillery, engineer, signal and/or medical sections.

MILITARY STATUTE OF THE MANDATED TERRITORY.

Western Samoa.

Area . . . . . 2,934 sq. km.
Population (XII 1933) . . . . 52,000

The territory under the mandate of New Zealand belongs to category C of the mandated territories.

Article 4 of the mandate relating to the military statute of Western Samoa reads as follows:

"The military training of the natives, otherwise than for purposes of internal police and the local defence of the territory, shall be prohibited. Furthermore, no military or naval bases shall be established nor fortifications erected in the territory."

Police.

The total strength on March 31st, 1934, numbered 50, including 36 natives. Native police receive no training in the use of arms.
