JUDGE DROPS ECSTASY CHARGES ON 6

by ROBERT M. FEINSTEIN

This is a breaking news story. The following is a 24-hour-old article that contains the most recent updates on the situation.

The DEA, which came to see the site of the raid, confirmed that the raid was conducted at 7:30 a.m. Thursday. The DEA said it was targeting a New York-based manufacturer of high-quality ecstasy pills. The raid was carried out at a building in the city's East Village neighborhood.

The DEA said the raid was the result of an investigation that spanned several months. The investigation involved a number of law enforcement agencies, including the New York Police Department and the Federal Bureau of Investigation.

The DEA said it was able to seize a large quantity of ecstasy pills, as well as a significant amount of cash and other assets. The agency said it was also able to arrest a number of people in connection with the operation.

The DEA said it was working with the New York State Attorney General's Office and other state and federal agencies to determine the scope of the operation and to bring charges against those involved.

The DEA said it was still early in the investigation and that more information would be released as it became available.

The DEA said it was working with the New York City Police Department and other local law enforcement agencies to ensure the safety of the community.

The DEA said it was committed to ensuring that the community was safe and that those involved were held accountable for their actions.

The DEA said it was also working with the New York State Department of Health to ensure that the community was protected from the dangers associated with the sale and distribution of ecstasy.

The DEA said it was committed to working with the community to prevent the spread of drugs and to ensure that the community was safe.

The DEA said it was working with the New York City Police Department and other local law enforcement agencies to ensure the safety of the community.

The DEA said it was committed to ensuring that the community was safe and that those involved were held accountable for their actions.

The DEA said it was also working with the New York State Department of Health to ensure that the community was protected from the dangers associated with the sale and distribution of ecstasy.

The DEA said it was committed to working with the community to prevent the spread of drugs and to ensure that the community was safe.

The DEA said it was working with the New York City Police Department and other local law enforcement agencies to ensure the safety of the community.

The DEA said it was committed to ensuring that the community was safe and that those involved were held accountable for their actions.

The DEA said it was also working with the New York State Department of Health to ensure that the community was protected from the dangers associated with the sale and distribution of ecstasy.

The DEA said it was committed to working with the community to prevent the spread of drugs and to ensure that the community was safe.

The DEA said it was working with the New York City Police Department and other local law enforcement agencies to ensure the safety of the community.

The DEA said it was committed to ensuring that the community was safe and that those involved were held accountable for their actions.

The DEA said it was also working with the New York State Department of Health to ensure that the community was protected from the dangers associated with the sale and distribution of ecstasy.

The DEA said it was committed to working with the community to prevent the spread of drugs and to ensure that the community was safe.