The report also estimated the cost of the Florida task force to be $66 million, excluding the cost of the military. This is far higher than the Administrator's estimates. The task force's budget was $1.5 million, but the Florida task force, which began operations in December 1980, spent $3.5 million on advertising and financing.

The report's data showed that there were 1.7 times as many marijuana seizures in Florida in 1980 as there were in 1979. The report also noted that the number of marijuana seizures in Florida increased by 198%, from 770 in 1979 to 2,100 in 1980. The report concluded that the task force's efforts were effective in reducing marijuana use in the state.
